

Michelle Rosenberger, LEED® AP, Partner

Michelle Rosenberger has two decades of A/E industry experience working with designers, engineers, and contractors to communicate about projects ranging from warehouses to highways and from hotels to low income housing. She has a keen eye for emerging trends and a flair for strategic planning. Michelle is an excellent facilitator and a gifted writer, publishing numerous articles on sustainable topics. She excels at public speaking and structuring presentations that raise awareness of green building issues.

RELEVANT EXPERIENCE

Post Occupancy Green Building Research Project*

In 2006, Michelle conceived and developed a post occupancy research project to obtain performance metrics for green building projects. Once results were analyzed, she subsequently structured the presentation, delivered at a regional conference, and published two articles in local and national publications.

Strategic Plan 2006 – 2009*

In Sept of 2005, Michelle conducted a series of facilitated workshops, online surveys, personal interviews, and visioning sessions designed to develop a short range strategic plan for an architectural firm. Firm wide goals were successfully adopted in 2006 by the leadership group. Michelle then instituted a small network of strategic plan groups to begin implementing recommendations.

Public Relations – Alcyone*

Michelle created a public relations plan for Alcyone Apartments, Seattle's first market rate LEED® Certified project, that spanned several years. The campaign included published articles in local and national publications, magazine advertisements, NPR spots, case studies, tours, and conference presentations.

LEED® AP Training*

This series of PowerPoint shows was created by Michelle to educate staff about the LEED® process and requirements as a training tool for those wishing to become LEED® Accredited Professionals. She then expanded these materials for use with clients during eco-charrettes. She co-facilitated several sustainable goal setting discussions with design teams.

Education

M.B.A., University of New Mexico, 2001

B.A in German/Linguistics, cum laude, University of California at Irvine, 1984

Certification

2005 Group Facilitation Skills, ICA Associates, Toronto, Canada

* Indicates work completed with other firms.